Chairman Stephens of the State Capitol Commission is opposed to any nude women blowing big horns being engraved on faces of the stones at entrances to the building or elsewhere. He is favoring sculpture of rivers, farm scenes, public men, presumably the commissioners et al likewise undoubtedly mules and other celebrated Missouri products, rather than seraphic designs usually found in such places. Oh well, there is no accounting for taste and while we favor women of any variety to men and mules, however celebrated, we really would like to see an improvement in the forms and features of the standard for such purposes. Why not let the sculptors see some of our Missouri girls as they are to be seen every day all over the state and get their idea from something really divine rather than copy the regulation slim jims and sour visages which look more like female Gabriels afloat than healthy, beautiful and intelligent disturbers of male equanimity.

Like Our Beer

This country is rapidly approaching Germany as a country of beer drinkers, this habit increasing, according to statistics. The average consumption of beer amounts to 20 gallons per capita. It is evident that some of us are missing our share. In ten years, the drinking decreased in England and Germany, which stand one and two in the beer drinking communities, while the drinking here has increased.

A. F. Chapman Dead

The Sunday Moberly Monitor has the following account of the death of a former resident of this county:

"A. F. Chapman, 48 years old, died about 8:30 o'clock Friday at his home, 430 Morehead street, after a short illness. Mr. Chapman had been a resident of Moberly but a short time. He was taken ill with diphtheria about ten days ago, and the disease could not be successfully combated, although he was given every attention possible.

"The surviving relatives are his widow and four daughters. Several members of the family are ill, and one daughter is said to be in a serious condition. For this reason no funeral services will be held here.

"Burial will be made at Mussel Fork cemetery in Chariton county, this afternoon."

Could Save $450

Why not elect a board of aldermen and a city marshal to serve without pay. It is reported that this would save to the city treasury something like $450 per annum, which, if spent judiciously would lay quite a few new and needed sidewalks, would keep quite a bit of street graded or might be used to advantage another way. The pay to the aldermen who meet once a month is not large enough to make it of any moment to the aldermen and, with the sheriff and deputy residing in town there is little need of a marshal. If it is impossible to avoid electing a marshal give him a salary of $1.00 per year with the understanding the job is technical, not actual. Plenty of men ought to be found here who would meet to conduct the city's affairs once a month without pay. This is done in other cities where the need of money for municipal affairs is no more apparent than here. A little public-spiritedness on the part of half a dozen men would do the work. The school board, which at times, finds plenty to do serves without pay. This is worth thinking about.

Vice Segregation Failure

Headed by Mrs. F. H. Ingalls, Prest. Womens protective league twelve women of prominence in St. Louis visited the Red Light district in St. Louis Monday afternoon and conferred with keepers and inmates. The object was to ascertain what the demi-monde expected to do when required to decamp March 1.

None of the visitors would say what she learned of the intention of the inmates, but all say they were well received and courteously treated. Dr. Crafts, superintendent of the International Reform Bureau and who has made the extermination of vice a life study and all over the world, at a lecture Sunday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. building in St. Louis, declared segregation of any class of vice was a failure. He declared the vice commissions of twenty cities, after experience with the segregation plan, were against it. Only two cities have thoroughly tried scattering such women about town instead of establishing a district for them, and those cities are demanding increase of police force at every council meeting. Lets wait and test further and then decide.
